SUMMARY

As a Computer Engineering student at Istanbul Health and Technology University, I am interested and passionate about my field. I have demonstrated my skills in programming, artificial intelligence, and project management through various certifications and projects. My participation has given me practical knowledge and hands-on experience in mobile application development and project management. Additionally, my participation in AI conferences and hackathons reflects my commitment to continuous learning and innovation. I am eager to use my technical and interpersonal skills to contribute to effective technological solutions.
